

WHAT HAVE YOU DONE FOR YOUR AIRLINE LATELY?

Innovations in aircraft, equipment and airline services appear daily. Assessing the right ones for your airline can be awfully time consuming, and the wrong decisions can be very costly.

The Tempair service changes all that.

Not only does it provide expert help in the selection and provision of new equipment and services, it releases you from the burden of large down payments and provides an instant operation at a guaranteed monthly price.

You get impartial advice based on the experience of dealing with more than 100 airlines.

We carry out individual studies and independently assess the right equipment for you, without bias towards particular manufacturers.

Aircraft can be leased or lease-purchased on very favourable terms using our own sources of finance. We provide our own flight deck and cabin staff and will carry out type conversions or full training for your personnel.

A full range of support services from maintenance to inflight catering is available.

Think about it. What have you done for your airline lately?

Or ask Tempair for an analysis of your current situation and a programme to suit your particular needs. But do it soon.
